Mock Drill – Terrorists Attacks

On April 26th, 2024, the Junior Wing orchestrated a gripping Terrorist Attack Mock Drill, immersing students in a scenario aimed at imparting vital survival skills.

The exercise commenced with a sharp blare of the hooter, triggering swift action. Entrances were swiftly secured, barricaded against any intruders. Within classrooms, doors were locked tight, fortified further by the strategic placement of teachers' desks. A hush fell over the environment as lights dimmed and fans stilled, while blinds descended to cloak the space in secrecy. Under the protective cover of tables, children sheltered in silence, poised and prepared, awaiting the next directive from their teachers.

As the simulated threat subsided and the all-clear signal sounded, relief washed over the room. Teachers emerged from their positions of protection, commending the students for their swift and disciplined response.

With hearts still racing, but minds empowered by knowledge and practice, the school community reflected on the importance of preparedness in the face of uncertainty.

Grateful for the opportunity to learn and grow in safety, they dispersed, carrying with them a newfound sense of resilience and unity.
